

ÉPREUVE ÉCRITE

Ministère de l'Éducation Nationale et de la Formation Professionnelle

EXAMEN DE FIN D'ÉTUDES SECONDAIRES TECHNIQUES

Division des Professions de Santé et des Professions Sociales

Sections SI / SL / SR / ED

BRANCHE: ANGLAIS

18 septembre 2007

DURÉE: 3 HEURES

Classe: Nom: Numéro:

PART I: GRAMMAR EXERCISE (15 MARKS / -1 PER DIFFICULTY)

Complete the following sentences with gerund or infinitive constructions using prepositions where necessary:

- 1 We all congratulated Judy (pass) her driving test.
- 2 As John is rather bad (learn) languages, he gave up (try) to do the exercise after just two sentences.

Combine or rewrite the following sentences using present or past participle constructions:

- 3 She knew that her husband was allergic to mushrooms, so she took care not to use any.
- 4 The old lady had fallen down the stairs and could not get up any more.

Put the following sentence into the passive voice:

- 5 They ought to tell her that what she is doing is dangerous.

Use modal auxiliaries in the correct tense and form to complete the following sentences:

- 6 My piece of cake is gone! My brother (* / eat) it. It (* not / be) the dog – it (* not / open) the fridge!

Put the verbs between brackets into the correct tense, form and voice:

- 7 When I (arrive) at the school yesterday, I (be) completely out of breath because I (run) the whole way.

Put the following sentences into reported speech:

- 8 Sara to Tom last Saturday: "Did you see Jamie at the pub last night? He said that he might come but he wasn't sure if he could make it."

Combine the following sentences using relative clauses:

- 9 My boyfriend's legs are very hairy. He does not like wearing shorts.
- 10 I am reading a novel at the moment. The novel is very good.

PART II: QUESTIONS ON TEXTS FROM IDEAS & ISSUES ADVANCED (15 MARKS)

- 1 Single Out The Selfish Breeders / Girls Are Turning To Violent Crime
According to these two articles, what are the children of teenage mothers going to learn from their mothers?
What consequences can this have for the future of the children? (7m)
- 2 Church Doctrine Barrier To Pacific Fight Against AIDS
What cultural and religious taboos are hindering the fight against AIDS in the South Pacific? Who can help to make a sustainable change in this region? (8m)

PART III: UNKNOWN TEXT (30 MARKS)

THE 100 CLUB

Centenarians are the fastest growing section of the UK population. There are 11,000 now and their number is expected to increase to 61,000 by 2036. A baby girl born in 2007 will have a one in 10 chance of reaching 100. Her brother will have a 4% chance of getting there. Up to 4,000 people will turn 100 in the UK this year - in 1900 it would have been fewer than 100. What can these survivors tell us about living well? And will the swelling ranks of "oldest old" shift attitudes?

"This is cause for celebration," says Thomas Perls, a professor and director of Boston University's New England Centenarian Study. "The increasing number of centenarians is an indicator of the health of society - a sign of people carrying on better health habits." Perls has studied 800 centenarians since the research started in 1994.

"These people refute the perception that the older you get the sicker you get. Centenarians teach us that the older you get the healthier you have been," he says. They age slowly and delay, or entirely escape, diseases such as Alzheimer's and cancer. Some 13% of centenarians are cognitively intact. They are lower users of healthcare than people who die in their 70s and 80s and remain independent well into their 90s. Seventy-three per cent are living independently at the age of 97 and 35% are still independent at the age of 100. This compression of morbidity, as geriatricians term it, means they spend more time living healthily and less time dying.

"They are also very funny, score low on neuroticism and don't internalise problems," says Perls. "Many have lost spouses and close family so they have to rely on non-traditional support. But they have an ability to cope and move on."

Some would like to see more imaginative provision of residential care for the oldest old. "One of the key problems is the idea that everything has to come into the home. A lot of residents would like to get out more, yet it's very rare to see a very old person at a family celebration. In many ways the oldest old are invisible." But exclusion will remain a threat for all older people unless they assert themselves. We know that people lead very varied lives, but society sees people as falling into helplessness at 65. The general perception is very negative.

In a 2005 report, the British health ministry stated that 35% of the 500,000 people living in residential care could remain in their own homes with the assistance of telecare¹.

In March last year, Sir Derek Wanless, in his report Securing Good Care for Older People, called for more extra-care housing - which currently provides for 20,000 older people - and the construction of "lifetime" homes "for the impaired and averagely frail very old". "There is a need to plan ahead for the whole of the ageing population, not just for those who will be eligible for state-supported social care," he said.

Individuals also have their part to play. Robert Butler, a geriatrician who founded the International Longevity Centre in New York in 1990 to study the medical and social implications of longer lives, says: "As people are living longer they must plan to take better care of themselves throughout life. Nutrition should be taught from kindergarten and everyone should be encouraged to exercise - ideally 10,000 steps a day." Butler, who turns 80 this month, works full time and says he wouldn't at all mind reaching 100. He is not alone.

(591 words / adapted from an article in The Guardian, 3rd January 2007)

Comprehension Questions

Answer the following questions about the text in your own words as far as possible.

- 1 What evidence is there that the 100 club is getting bigger and bigger? (4m)
- 2 How does Thomas Perls explain that there are so many centenarians these days? What can they teach us about long life? (7m)
- 3 What does the text say about residential care for the elderly? (4m)
- 4 What precautions should be taken now to improve the quality of life of the elderly in the future? (5m)

Development Essay

Write an essay of 150 words (+/- 10 %) on the following topic. Indicate the number of words used!

What do you think of the way elderly people are treated in Luxembourg? What should be changed according to you?

¹ Telecare is a system that allows elderly people who live alone to call for help if they fall down or hurt themselves by means of a transmitter they wear on their wrist or around their neck.